

Dr Cooper: So, Boris, you live here in Oxford...

Boris: yeah

Dr Cooper: But you're from Liverpool.

Boris: Yes.

Dr Cooper: How long does it take to get to Liverpool?

Boris: It takes about three hours to get from Oxford to Liverpool.

Dr Cooper: By car, or...?

Boris: By car, yeah. So, you're from Brazil.

Dr Cooper: Yeah.

Boris: How long does it take to get to Brazil from Oxford?

Dr Cooper: Well, it takes two hours to get to Heathrow, or one and a half hours to get to the airport, and then from Heathrow to Guarulhos, which is the big airport in São Paulo, it takes about ten hours.

Boris: Wow!

Dr Cooper: Yeah...

Boris: And that's not driving.

Dr Cooper: No.

Boris: That's by plane.

Dr Cooper: And besides that, when I wake up, I have to take a shower.

Boris: Yeah, when you get there. How long does it take you to take a shower?

Dr Cooper: For me, it usually takes about... Honestly? Honestly, about twenty-five minutes.

Boris: Twenty-five minutes?

Dr Cooper: Yeah...

Boris: What do you do?

Dr Cooper: I think... I relax... How long does it take you to take a shower?

Boris: Like five minutes.

Dr Cooper: Five minutes?

Boris: And less. If I wash my hair, it takes me a bit longer.

Dr Cooper: It doesn't take me long to wash my hair.

Boris: You don't have much hair.

Dr Cooper: Thank you! How about when you wake up? How long does it take you to make breakfast?

Boris: In the morning, it takes me half an hour to make and eat breakfast.

Dr Cooper: How long does it take you to make breakfast?

Boris: Oh, it takes me five minutes to make breakfast.

Dr Cooper: And it takes you twenty-five minutes to eat breakfast?

Boris: Yeah, I like a slow breakfast. I like to take my time.

Dr Cooper: That's awesome, that's awesome. But, you know, for me it's the opposite.

Boris: Really?

Dr Cooper: Yeah, it takes me... No, not the opposite. It takes me five minutes to make breakfast and it takes me thirty seconds, it takes me thirty seconds to eat breakfast.

Boris: So, you eat breakfast quickly.

Dr Cooper: Exactly.

Boris: It doesn't take you very long.

Dr Cooper: No.
