

Dr Cooper: Hey, Boris. My mother- I don't think my mother is going to give me a present for Christmas.

Boris: Cooper, I wasn't gonna get you a present for Christmas either.

Dr Cooper: You weren't going to give me a present?

Boris: No, it isn't a priority for me to buy you a present!

Dr Cooper: I can't believe that! But I wasn't going to give you a present either.

Boris: I wasn't expecting you to get me a present. But now that you mention it, maybe you should get me a present!

Dr Cooper: I shouldn't get you a present. You're not gonna get me a present! And besides that- To change the subject a little, I don't even think- I think Christina isn't going to give me a present either!

Boris: Maybe she just hates Christmas shopping because Christmas shopping isn't very fun.

Dr Cooper: Yeah, you know, I know that some people love shopping but most of my friends, they don't. They're not very interested in shopping.

Boris: They don't like walking around stores, having to guess what people would want to have for Christmas. It doesn't sound fun.

Dr Cooper: But you won't go to the mall?

Boris: I will not go to the shopping centre to buy Christmas presents.

Dr Cooper: No way?

Boris: No way!

Dr Cooper: It isn't fun?

Boris: It isn't fun and I'm not gonna do it ever.

Dr Cooper: I think that's a good decision.

Boris: Me too!
